SHANGHAI POLICE EFFECT COUP.

THE GAMBLING ELITE CAUGHT NAPPING.

BARBED-WIRE BARRICADE IN BUBBLING WELL ROAD.

PUNTERS PERTURBED.

Shanghai, May 26.

Shanghai's fashionable sporting elements, the fraternity which is fond of an occasional "nutter," are awaiting with the greatest interest, in some cases not unmixed with a little apprehension, the outcome of most extraordinary happenings in the early hours of this morning when an alleged high-class, "roulette" establishment was the subject of police interest.

Some time after midnight, a large posse of Settlement police, suddenly appeared in Bubbling Well Road, one of Shanghai's most fashionable residential districts, with equipment for the erection of barbed wire barricades.

Through the Barricade.

They stopped in front of No. 151, Bubbling Well Road, and proceeded to erect an effective barricade in front of the premises, leaving only a narrow gap, while all other exits were effectively guarded.

All persons emerging from the premises were compelled to give their names and addresses before they were allowed to depart.

Roulette Establishment.

This unexpected action by the police follows the publication in the Shanghai Municipal Gazette (for public information) of considerable correspondence on the subject of gambling in the course of which No. 151, Bubbling Well Road was named as the location of the city's principal roulette establishment.

After the placing of the barricade, it is stated, scores of men and women in evening dress traversed the passage through the barbed wire, giving their names and addresses, while the street was almost blocked by automobiles and curious onlookers.

No Warrant.

It is rather extraordinary that the police, in carrying out this unexpected enterprise, did not serve a warrant on the premises, made no attempt to enter the house at all, made no effort to seize anything in the nature of incriminating evidence, and arrested no one.

The list of names taken, if published, would probably be startling in their revelations, and it is with regard to this list that so much interest is being taken. The police decline at the moment to disclose what action they are likely to take with regard to them.

Fear of Publicity?

It is supposed that this is the first move towards the breaking-up of the numerous gambling establishments in Shanghai. The Bubbling Well Road premises are thought to be run on Casino lines, possibly accounting for the police mode of action.

The opinion is expressed that the police anticipate, without taking direct action, that the business of such establishments can be destroyed by the simple process of playing upon the frequenters' fear of publicity.

Dens in Chinese City.

The Chinese police, it is understood, are also taking action to put an end to the secret gambling dens which are just over the Settlement border in Chinese territory. These present a far more serious scandal.

Some of them are to be found in the rear of premises run ostensibly as cabarets, and are run on somewhat curious lines. It is recorded that in one of these dens the foreign croupier would take the wheel apart, after every tenth spin, to prove that the wheel was not "crooked."—Our Own Correspondent.

LIVE BOMBS IN MAY ROAD FLAT.

SURPRISING DISCOVERY MADE BY WORKMEN.

SWORD AND REVOLVER.

A rather startling discovery was made by the police this morning as the result of a visit paid to an empty apartment in Tregunter Mansions, May Road, a number of Mills bombs, a sword and a loaded revolver being found on the premises.

It appears that, acting on instructions, a party of detectives, with officials from the Criminal Investigation Department, paid a visit to the flat at about nine o'clock this morning, and, on entering the apartment, found the bombs, the sword and revolver.

A Telegraph representative later in the morning endeavored to secure fuller details of the discovery, but, owing to the absence of the Inspector in charge of the raid, it was impossible to obtain the full facts. It was, however, learned that, in all, five Mills bombs were found, these being "live" with detonators complete.

In reply to questions, the police stated that they could give no information regarding the previous occupant of the apartment.

A suggestion was made that an Army officer might have occupied the flat and left these "souvenirs" behind.

Later information is to the effect that the bombs, sword and revolver were found by workmen who were renovating the flat, and the police were communicated with.

The police do not attach any special significance to the discovery, believing that the bombs and arms must have been left there by the previous tenant.

MORE THAN A WEEK IN THE AIR.

AMERICAN FLIERS SET A NEW RECORD.

New York, May 26.

The Ryan monoplane piloted by R.L. Robbins and J. Kelly landed at Fort Worth, Texas, this evening after a flight of 172 hours and 32 minutes (7 days, 4 hours, 32 minutes).

This sets a new record for non-stop flying by the re-fuelling in the air system, the previous best being that of the U.S. Army aeroplane "Question Mark" which established an endurance record of 150 hours and 40 minutes some months ago.—Reuter's American Service.

Later. Contrasted with the performance of the "Question Mark," which was carried out by five experienced airmen backed by the Government, Robbins and Kelly picked up their monoplane second-hand, effected repairs, and announced their intention of flying until the engine "died" or its structure cracked.

The monotony was relieved twice daily by visits from another plane with fuel, food, letters and newspapers.—Reuter's American Service.

BRILLIANT SCENES IN PEKING.

JOURNEY TO NANKING IN RESPLENDENT TRAIN.

BRITAIN'S GOODWILL.

London, May 26.

A British oak and a birch are to be replanted as near as possible to the Mausoleum at Nanking in which the remains of the late Dr. Sun Yat-sen are to be interred. This gift is a token of British goodwill.

The ceremonies in connexion with Dr. Sun's burial will extend over a week, concluding with the actual interment of the remains, which are being taken from Peking to Nanking.

Sir Miles Lampson, the British Minister to China, will represent the British Government.

Dr. Sun Yat-sen, known as the Father of the Republic, died in Peking in 1925 and his body was embalmed, according to Chinese custom, near the Western Hills, about ten miles from Peking. His body was later placed in a crystal coffin.—British Wireless.

Yesterday, Dr. Sun's remains, enclosed in a bronze coffin, were removed from the Jade Cloud Temple in the Western Hills, for the 15-mile journey to Peking.

The Entry Into Peking.

Peking, May 26. Among those who started with the procession from the Jade Cloud Temple were Madame Sun Yat-sen, Mr. Sun Fo, and Mr. Ho Cheung-chun.

The procession, which started out at one o'clock in the morning, was lighted down the mountain-side from the Temple by a thousand children carrying lanterns.

The body entered the city through the Hsichimen Gate, where a procession more than a mile long was formed up. It was made up of banner-bearers, seven military bands, two student bands, detachments of Shansi troops and long streams of mourners, including representatives of the Central Executive Committee, the National Government, local public bodies and military leaders.

Next came a huge portrait of the late leader and the catafalque, which was of beautiful blue silk, corded with white and emblazoned with a white sun. Immediately behind the coffin was a smart detachment of Fengtien cavalry, which was in the saddle from the Temple to the station for fourteen hours.

Then followed Madame Sun Yat-sen in a carriage with Mr. Sun Fo and their family mourners.

Seen by 100,000 People.

Along the cordoned streets for more than four miles the procession marched through the city, the crowds gazing at the pageantry of which they had not seen the like since the funeral of Yuan Shih-kai. It is estimated that nearly 100,000 people watched the procession inside the city.

Just before the station was reached, Mr. Sun Fo dismounted from the carriage and preceded the magnificent blue and white pallions which had been erected outside the station.

He was joined by Madame Sun Yat-sen, who followed the coffin through the station into the special coach prepared for it.

Madame Sun Breaks Down.

She was dressed in a very plain black frock and was obviously weepy after her 14-hour journey from the Temple. She broke down and sobbed as the coffin slid into its place for its journey to the capital.

Crowds of privileged visitors flooded the Station buildings and platforms, all of which were swathed in blue and white decorations, in order to watch the arrival of the coffin, while the bands played funeral music.

The body was conveyed in a resplendent blue-painted coach decorated with silver suns of the national flag, the entire train being painted blue. Madame Sun Yat-sen travelled in the coach ahead of the coffin, and Mr. Sun Fo in the one behind. Punctually at five o'clock, the

HAGEN AND COMPSTON.

Berlin, May 26.

Though beaten by the well-known British player, Percy Alliss, who is the professional for the Wannsee Club, Berlin, the American golfing contingent were again in the forefront of the field, Horton Smith being second, followed by Farrell, Hagen and Dudley in that order.

Alliss played with splendid consistency in the concluding rounds of the competition, the German Open Championship, his knowledge of the course being the great factor in his favour. He followed up his 141 for the first 36, by returning cards aggregating 144 for the second. He won the title for the fourth year in succession.

Horton Smith, who was four under fours for the first 36, could

MENACE TO HEALTH.

At to-morrow's meeting of the Sanitary Board, Mr. M. K. Lo, the newly appointed member, will move a resolution urging an alteration in the present system of water restriction.

Mr. Lo's resolution is in the following terms:—"That, in the opinion of this Board, the present system of water restriction constitutes a menace to public health, and that this Board, whilst recognizing the regrettable necessity for drastic water restriction at the present time, nevertheless considers that the Government should re-consider and review such existing system in the interest of public health."

The six leading scores were: Percy Alliss (Wannsee) 285

J. Farrell (U.S.A.) 288

British Amateur Title.

London, May 26. Greatest interest in British golfing circles is now centred on the British Amateur Golf Championship which commences at Sandwich on June 10th.

There is a record entry of 263, which exceeds the entry for the British Open. The American challenge is not regarded seriously, the only player of any note in the competition being George Von Elm. A dozen or so lesser American lights are competing, but they are not expected to travel far.—Reuter.

Hagen to Play.

London, May 26. After considerable twitting by the British newspapers, Walter Hagen, the American golfer, who cried off his challenge match with Archie Compston on the grounds of tiredness, has changed his mind and has agreed to meet Compston.

The match will be over 72 holes, the first half to be played at Moor Town on Friday and the second half at Birmingham on Saturday.

After the publicity to the match by Hagen's early defection, it is expected that an enormous crowd will follow the game.—Reuter.

funeral train steamed out, being preceded by a pilot train, two armoured cars and one troop of guards, followed by another armoured train and a guest train. The only foreigner in the procession to-day was a Canadian, Mr. Maurice Cohen, formerly Dr. Sun's special bodyguard in Canton. Arrangements had been made for foreign diplomats to partake in the ceremony, but they were not invited, and therefore did not attend.—Reuter.

WOMAN'S AMAZING ADVENTURES.

PUZZLE FOR SHANGHAI AUTHORITIES.

CASE OF LOUISA GERALD BAFFLES EVERYBODY.

WAS FORMERLY HERE.

The authorities in Shanghai, as well as a number of charitable institutions, are greatly puzzled over the case of Louisa Gerald, who, it will be recalled, was arrested in Hongkong some time back as a stowaway and sent back to the Northern port.

She is still in Shanghai, and, according to a story printed by the Shanghai Times, she bears the wounds of three bullets from rifles in the hands of Bolsheviks. She was forced to stand by in helpless terror while her parents were murdered. She has made eighteen attempts to stowaway on vessels bound for America. Seven times, tired of the struggle of life, she has attempted suicide. Once she was rescued from the Whangpoo River after jumping from a tender.

Louisa, who is 25 years old, says she does not know what is to become of her. The American authorities do not know, nor do various charitable institutions who have assisted this girl of misfortune during the past few years.

Claims U. S. Citizenship.

She insists that she is entitled to American citizenship. She claims to have been born in New York of an Irish father, a naturalized American, and an American Indian mother. American authorities, however, cannot find the slightest proof of these assertions. In this story no conclusions are drawn, the story being set forth as told by the girl.

Louisa Gerald's greatest ambition is to go to America. There, she believes, she can find employment, prosperity and happiness. But she cannot obtain a passport. For years she has tried unsuccessfully.

The American authorities here and elsewhere have turned an attentive, kindly ear to this girl's story. They have made careful, painstaking searches into the records, but cannot find substantiation of Louisa's declarations. They, therefore, cannot issue her a passport.

Not wanted in Russia.

Russia will have none of her. Twice, she says, she has gone to Harbin and attempted to return to the place in Siberia once called home, but has been turned back by the Soviet authorities. She cannot go to America, and she says she cannot find employment in Shanghai. It is known, however, that on many occasions charitable institutions here have aided her in many ways.

Here is her own statement: "I was born in New York City on February 20, 1904. My father was Morris Gerald, a native of Ireland and a naturalized American citizen. He was born in Dublin, Ireland, and went to America in 1897. In America he married Miss Ruth Callhough, an Indian woman. To this union were born three children, of which I am the eldest and the only one of the three born in the United States.

Taken to England.

"My father was married in New York either in 1900 or 1903. I have no papers or records of any kind as I was taken to England at the age of four years by my parents, where my father obtained a position with the British gold mining corporation and was sent to Semipalatinsk, Siberia, near Chinese Turkestan. In 1916 our family went to America for a short visit, returning to Siberia the same year.

"In May of 1918 my parents were killed by Bolsheviks, together with about 50 workmen and a nurse. I escaped with my amah and went to her home, remaining there in safety until 1922, when I returned to my former home in Siberia, hoping to find some means of identification.

Thrown in Gaol.

"Upon my arrival in Siberia I was thrown into gaol, remaining there until July, 1925, when I was taken ill with small-pox, recovered, and was released.

AIRMEN LIVING IN A LIGHTHOUSE.

MOIR AND OWEN WRECKED IN THE DARKNESS.

BRAIN TELLS AGAIN.

Sydney, May 26.

The discovery, after over a week of anxious searching, of the whereabouts of the England-Australia fliers, Flight-Lieutenant Moir and Flying Officer Owen, has revealed that the airmen have at no time been in serious danger.

They have been located with their plane, which is slightly damaged, at a lighthouse about a hundred miles to the east of Port Darwin, their intended landing place in Australia, and it is somewhat strange that their "saviour" should be Mr. Brain, the pilot of the aeroplane "Atlanta," who also found the "Southern Cross" when she was missing.

It is now learned that the failure of the fliers to reach Port Darwin was due to the fact that they were driven off their course and mistook the Cape Don lighthouse for Port Darwin.

They landed there in the darkness and the plane was damaged, but the pilots were uninjured. They have been living for a week at the lighthouse which has no means of communication with Port Darwin.

It is not yet known whether their plane can be repaired to enable them to continue their flight, which, originally planned to take twelve days, has now occupied them for over two months.—Reuter.

FRENCH HARDCOURT TENNIS.

GREAT FRENCH FIGHT IN MEN'S DOUBLES.

Paris, May 26.

The final stages of the French Harcourt Tennis Championships has been reached, another final being played to-day.

In the final of the Men's Doubles, J. Borra and R. Lacoste (France) beat H. Cochet and J. Brugnon (France) by 6-3, 3-6, 6-3, 3-6, 6-6. It was a magnificent fight from start to finish, the winners showing extreme brilliance in the final set.

In the semi-final of the Mixed Doubles, F. T. Hunter and Miss Helen Wills (U.S.A.) defeated E. J. Collins and Miss Goldsack (Great Britain) 6-2, 6-2.

In the quarter-final in the other half, H. Cochet (France) and Miss Eileen Bennett (Great Britain) defeated Gregory and Mrs. Watson (Britain) 3-6, 6-2, 6-1.—Reuter.

OPIUM IN TOPEES.

ALSO STRAPPED ROUND MAN'S LEGS.

Illicit opium was found by Revenue Officers secreted in topees worn by three Chinese who were arrested on the waterfront during the week-end. Bands strapped around their legs were also found to hold further quantities of the drug.

Charged before Mr. E. W. Hamilton at the Central Police Court this morning, with the possession each of 82 taels of raw opium, two of the men were fined $560, or, in default, seven months. The third man, who had 22 taels, was fined $630, or six months.

SOCIALISTS RECEIVE A SET-BACK.

Brussels, May 26.

According to figures so far announced, the Government Parties—namely, Liberals and Catholics—are scoring gains in the General Election.

The Socialists have received a set-back everywhere, whilst the Flemish Party has doubled its representation and the Communists hold their previous seats.—Reuter.

TROOPS TO HELP CANTON.

10,000 ARRIVE FROM THE NORTH.

NEWCOMERS SAID TO BE KWANGSI MEN.

SENT TO WEST RIVER.

A message from Shamshui states that a considerable number of troops proceeded up the river on Sunday.

Canton, May 25.

General Chan Ming-shu, Civil Governor of Kwangtung, arrived in Canton yesterday afternoon just before 4 o'clock on the Northern cruiser Hai Fu. He landed at the Government wharf at the end of Wing Hon Maloo South and immediately entered the Government bullet-proof Nash six-cylinder car and was driven to the Government Yamen.

The roads were kept clear during the passage of the car and no one was allowed on the Bund during the landing or for some considerable time before General Chan arrived. Very strong precautions were taken against any untoward incidents, and the streets between the Government Wharf and the Yamen were lined with police and troops.

Echo of Battle.

A large number of bodies have been observed floating down the river all yesterday and to-day, coming from the direction of the Bamboo River, obviously the results of Tuesday's battle at Lupa.

A large number of General Hsu King-tong's troops which were fighting for Kwangsi in the East River have turned over to Canton again. They have arrived in Chung Muk Tau, on the Canton-Kowloon Railway, and are entraining there for Canton. One special train full of these troops arrived last night, and another this morning.

Troopships Arrive.

Four troopships arrived in Canton this afternoon between 1 and 3 o'clock and it is said that another ship is in the river and will reach here to-day or tomorrow. Two of these boats are China Merchant Steam Navigation Company's vessels, the others being Chinese merchant vessels commandeered by the Nanking Government.

Considerable uneasiness is felt in Canton with regard to these troops. It is said that they were formerly the troops of Generals Pei Chung-hsi and Li Chung-yen, the Kwangsi Generals who were in power in Wuhan a couple of months ago, and that the greatest part of them are themselves Kwangsi men.

When they were in Wuhan, they turned over to the Nanking side, but now that they have been sent down here to fight against their people, it is feared that they may take advantage of the situation to declare for Kwangsi and to again turn over to General Pei Chung-hsi.

A conservative estimate puts the number of men on these troopships at roughly 10,000, as it can well be imagined that should there again be a case of treachery and they were to declare for Kwangsi, Canton would be at their mercy.

Not Landed.

This is only too well realised by the Canton authorities and, up to the moment of writing, these troops have not been allowed to land, but are still on board their transport lying in the river near Shameen.

Indeed, it is stated on good authority that General Chan Ching-tong, when he heard which troops were on the way down from the North, some days ago, did all in his power to get Nanking to recall them, and afterwards it is said that when no step was taken to do so, he ordered the vessels by wireless to put in at Swatow and land their troops there to await further orders.

The troops, however, are said to have refused to go to Swatow at all, and, having embarked for Canton, they insisted on proceeding direct to their destination.

CEREMONIES AT REMOVAL OF REMAINS.

Peking, May 26. Funerally at one o'clock this morning, Dr. Sun Yat-sen's remains, enclosed in a bronze coffin, were removed from Jade Cloud Temple (Piyinssu) in the Western Hills for its 15-mile journey to Peking.

Eight batches of 32 pall bearers carried the huge catafalque the entire distance, the whole being guarded by troops preceded by bands and followed by troops.

All traffic along the road leading to Peking via the Summer Palace was stopped during the eight hours it took the procession to make its way slowly to Peking's city walls. When the procession was nearing the city the guns mounted outside the entrance to the Forbidden City boomed out a salute of a hundred and one guns while aeroplanes from Mukden circled over the city and over the procession.—Reuter.

AMBASSADOR'S OFFER.

DISPENSING WITH PRIVILEGE OF DIPLOMATIC LIQUOR.

New York, May 26. Sir Esme Howard, British Ambassador in New York, stated to Pressmen that he would be only too glad to co-operate with other diplomatic officers to surrender the privilege to have diplomatic liquor, if the United States Government were to intimate its desire to cancel the privilege.

Sir Esme Howard sent a letter to that effect to Mr. James Carter, lumber manufacturer, in reply to a letter in which Mr. Carter urged Sir Esme Howard "to join hands to better the element of the people of the United States, and to try and help us to enforce prohibition laws in this country."

Mr. Carter is reported to have requested President Hoover that steps should be taken immediately to accept Sir Esme Howard's proposal.

Sir Esme Howard subsequently made a statement, emphasizing that his views constituted a personal opinion and not a statement on behalf of the Diplomatic Corps.—Reuter's American Service.

STRUCK A ROCK.

EUROPEANS RESCUED FROM LAUNCH.

A Sanitary Department launch with about fifty Europeans on board struck a rock when returning from a bathing picnic to Shek-O yesterday evening, those on board being rescued by two other launches which happened to be in the vicinity.

The launch was badly holed and last night was reported to have filled up. The Kowloon Dock tug, Henry Keswick was sent out late last night in an attempt to effect salvage following a report that the launch was likely to sink.

The launch involved was Sanitary Department No. 3 which left Hongkong shortly after 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon with a number of Sanitary Department officials, their wives, families and friends on board. The party numbered 60, including fifteen children and twenty women. The party went to Shek-O and on the return journey nothing unusual occurred until about 6.20 p.m. when the launch was approaching Futuamun.

Rescue Launches Arrive.

At the time an impromptu concert was being held by those on board. Suddenly there was a terrific shock and the launch listed sharply to one side. Fortunately the majority of the people on board were seated on one side of the launch otherwise many would undoubtedly have been thrown into the sea by the force of the impact and the fact that the launch heeled over. It was soon discovered that a submerged rock had been struck, but the launch righted itself, continuing to sway menacingly however. The launch soon became wedged between two rocks and the fact that she was badly damaged was soon made apparent by the entry of water.

The incident created a good deal of anxiety which was not allayed until the arrival about ten minutes later, of two other launches, the Swan and Cranbury. The two launches were warned not to come close in owing to the rocks, the bathers on board the S.D.3 utilising the dinghy for their transfer to the other vessels.

A sampan was in the vicinity and this was also used to transfer passengers from the damaged launch. The Swan returned to Hongkong and disembarked her passengers at Shauiwan when the Water Police were informed by telephone.

No Loss of Life.

They had, however, heard previously of the accident and had taken steps to render assistance. There was a Police officer on board the Cranbury and this launch stood by the S.D.3 until the arrival of a Police launch. The latter was in constant communication last night with the Water Police Station by wireless and at a late hour it was learned that the S.D.3 had filled up and appeared likely to sink. In consequence of this information the Henry Keswick was sent out to the spot to attempt to salvage the launch.

Among those on board the S.D.3 were Mr. and Mrs. Ecclesham, Mr. and Mrs. Blake, Mr. and Mrs. Wood and Messrs. Strange, Miles, Reid, Millington and Frost. In addition to other members of the Sanitary Department there were also a number of their friends. Fortunately the accident was attended by no loss of life or injury, all those on board the disabled craft being safely transferred to other launches.

Rome, May 26.

The Senate, by 315 votes to 6, passed the Bill ratifying the Lateran Treaty, namely an agreement between the Italian Government and the Vatican establishing a Vatican State. The Bill has already passed the Chamber.—Reuter.

AVIATION RECORDS.

REFUELLED MACHINE SETS A NEW MARK.

Fort Worth, Texas, May 26. A single-engined Ryan monoplane "Fort Worth" has beaten the endurance record of 150 hours, 40 minutes, 15 seconds established by the army aeroplane "Question Mark" last January, and is still going strong.

The "Fort Worth," flown by two American pilots took off six days ago, and refuelled in the air and has remained up ever since. It has now beaten every endurance and distance flying record.

The firm have dropped a note saying they intend to try and remain aloft for two hundred hours.—Reuter's American Service.

"Beware, my son, beware!"

"Stay away from Peterman's! It has killed your whole family!"

"Don't walk through it. Don't smell it. Don't touch it. Go hungry for days first."

She's right. PETERMAN'S ROACH FOOD exterminates every roach in your house. Nothing is left but a little cry dust.

Some housewives make the mistake of fighting cockroaches with a spray. Those are the houses roaches stay in. They live down behind baseboards, under the floors. No spray can possibly reach them, or their young, or their eggs.

Only a powder can exterminate them. PETERMAN'S ROACH FOOD is the right powder. Just one roach gets a little powder on his legs. Back to his nest he goes. He crawls over the others and eggs. Every roach he touches dies and disintegrates.

Here is the right insecticide for each insect:

EVERSHARP Leads and Erasers

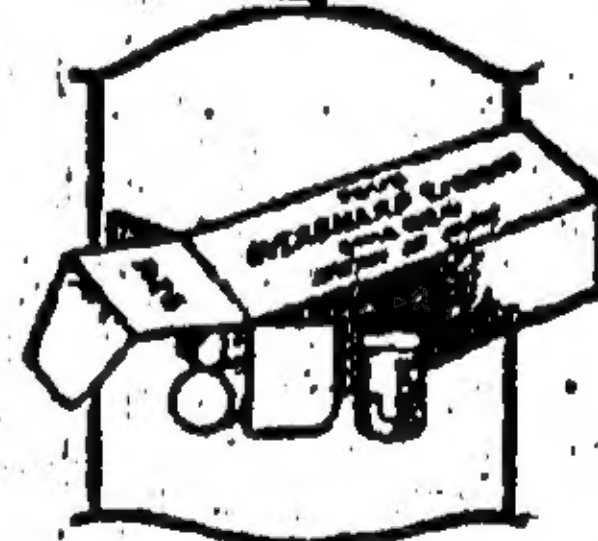

For your Eversharp pencil, Eversharp Red Top lead is the only lead that really fits. Though all leads look alike, tiny differences in diameter are enough to make other leads wobble and slip, or jam in the tip of the pencil. Red Top leads come in all necessary degrees of hardness and in all colors. When your present Eversharp eraser becomes worn, it takes only a few seconds to replace it with a new one. Eversharp erasers are made of new, live rubber and give a clean, smudge-less erasure. Your Eversharp dealer can supply you with Eversharp pencils and Red Top leads.

"The Three Passions," which comes to the Queen's Theatre on Thursday marks an interesting departure in production on the part of Rex Ingram, its director, who made the picture for the new British company, St. George's Productions Ltd.

"The Three Passions" is a story of present-day English life, given it is said an ultra-modern presentation. It presents an interesting contrast with earlier Ingram pictures in which the East, or the South of Europe provided the background and the story called for "costume," as in "The Garden of Allah," or quaint setting as in the case of "Mare Nostrum."

Apart from the prospect of appreciating a director's versatility, "The Three Passions" promises patrons a strong cast, in which Alice Terry and Ivan Petrovitch as co-stars are the chief attractions. Their fellow artists include Shayle Gardner, a New Zealander prominent on the British stage and screen; Leslie Faber, a West End favourite in London and who is also well known in New York, and Andrews, Englishman, the Russian player who made a hit in "Mare Nostrum."

"The Three Passions" has scenes at Oxford University, in a big English shipbuilding yard, in London restaurants and other haunts of her young set and in a mission in the slums of the East End. Many big sets were used at the Ingram studio at Nice in staging the interiors, one representing a strike of 2,000 workmen calling for a reproduction of a gigantic engineering works which is said to be the finest set ever made in France.

Eastern Residents With Western Habits.

A fruitful source of ill-health among Europeans resident in the Far East is the utter disregard of climatic demands in the matter of food.

It is no exaggeration to say that nearly every European eats meat at least twice a day, and in addition partakes freely and frequently of rich indigestible foods, with the result that at last the stomach rebels, the miseries of indigestion set in and the appetite dwindles to nothing.

Yet even then, instead of taking these troubles as a "Wrong-food" warning—so rooted is the belief among Europeans that one must eat generously to sustain the strength in a hot climate—the victim has recourse to various artificial means, appetisers and purgatives, for example, and so furthers the already established evil.

To put matters right the blood needs immediate attention—it must be purified, strengthened and enriched. And for this purpose Dr. Williams' pink pills, the famous blood tonic, stand pre-eminent. For over forty years these pills have been curing just such cases as these. They send fresh strength, energy and health to all parts of the system with every dose. Try them now and see how quickly you begin to feel better. Of all dealers, and from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 60, King's Road, Shanghai, a bottle for $1.50, 6 bottles $8, post free. As you value your health refuse substitutes.

WOMAN'S WORLD FOR OUR LADY READERS.

And Now Dame Fashion Says—

"Down with the Ruffles"

Matters of Interest.

EVENING HANDKERCHIEFS.

Fancy handkerchiefs are still being carried with evening frocks, and many novelties are to be found. Designed to be carried with a gown decorated with paillettes is a square of ivory georgette finished with a wide border of square and rounded silver paillettes. Another kerchief of pale pink georgette is bordered with silver lace, the small floral design being picked out with pastel-shaded beads.

Wristlet Golf Scorers.

For those who find it difficult to keep their scores while playing golf, there are the new golf scorers, made in the shape of a watch. They are strapped on to the wrist and worked by turning handles at the side; they show the number of strokes taken for the hole, and whether it was won or lost.

Capes for Tennis.

A cape is a handy garment to throw round one's shoulders after a hard set of tennis, and is going to be extremely popular this year. For a warm day there are attractive examples in brightly coloured stockinette, and a flannel cape would be very welcome as a protection against wind. Most of the sports ensembles also include a cape, and one Oxford Street shop shows an accordion-pleated skirt of white stockinette to be worn with a brilliant red jumper, beret and cape.

Leaf Design Frocks.

A frock of printed crepe-de-Chine in the popular leaf design has an attractive yoke, which consists of polished panels of parchment-coloured chiffon. The points of the chiffon extend to the waist of the gown, and are drawn together at the neck with bows of crepe-de-Chine. The frock is completed by a long straight coat of the crepe-de-Chine.

Chinese Supshade.

Sunshades for summer days have made their appearance in the shops, and one most attractive example of a serviceable and yet dainty parasol is expressed in bottle green silk. A design of Chinese pagodas, quaint Chinamen in picturesque robes, and other Eastern scenes are hand painted in shades of green, brown and gold. The handle of the shade is lacquered in harmonising colours.

Ensign Brooches.

The Blue Ensign makes an original brooch for yachting enthusiasts; the ground work is composed of diamonds, the colours being picked out in sapphires and rubies. The flag is given the appearance of fluttering in the breeze, and is attached to a slender platinum mast.

Raffia Hat Trimming.

Raffia in brilliant colours trims a straw hat, made in natural coloured straw in the cloche shape. Two large flowers in yellow and red cover the front of the hat, with their stalks trailing round to the back.

Original Shawl.

A plain black evening shawl of satin with a tulle hem has a quaint trimming. Just where the tulle joins the satin is a line of pale pink shells, sewn closely together and going all round the shawl, which is square in shape.

"Surplus" Men.

WHERE THEY ARE TO BE FOUND.

Despite the matter of fact, practical attitude to life which is supposed to be characteristic of the British woman of to-day, it appears that she has not been taking, of late years, so very sensible a view of her own problems as might have been expected of her.

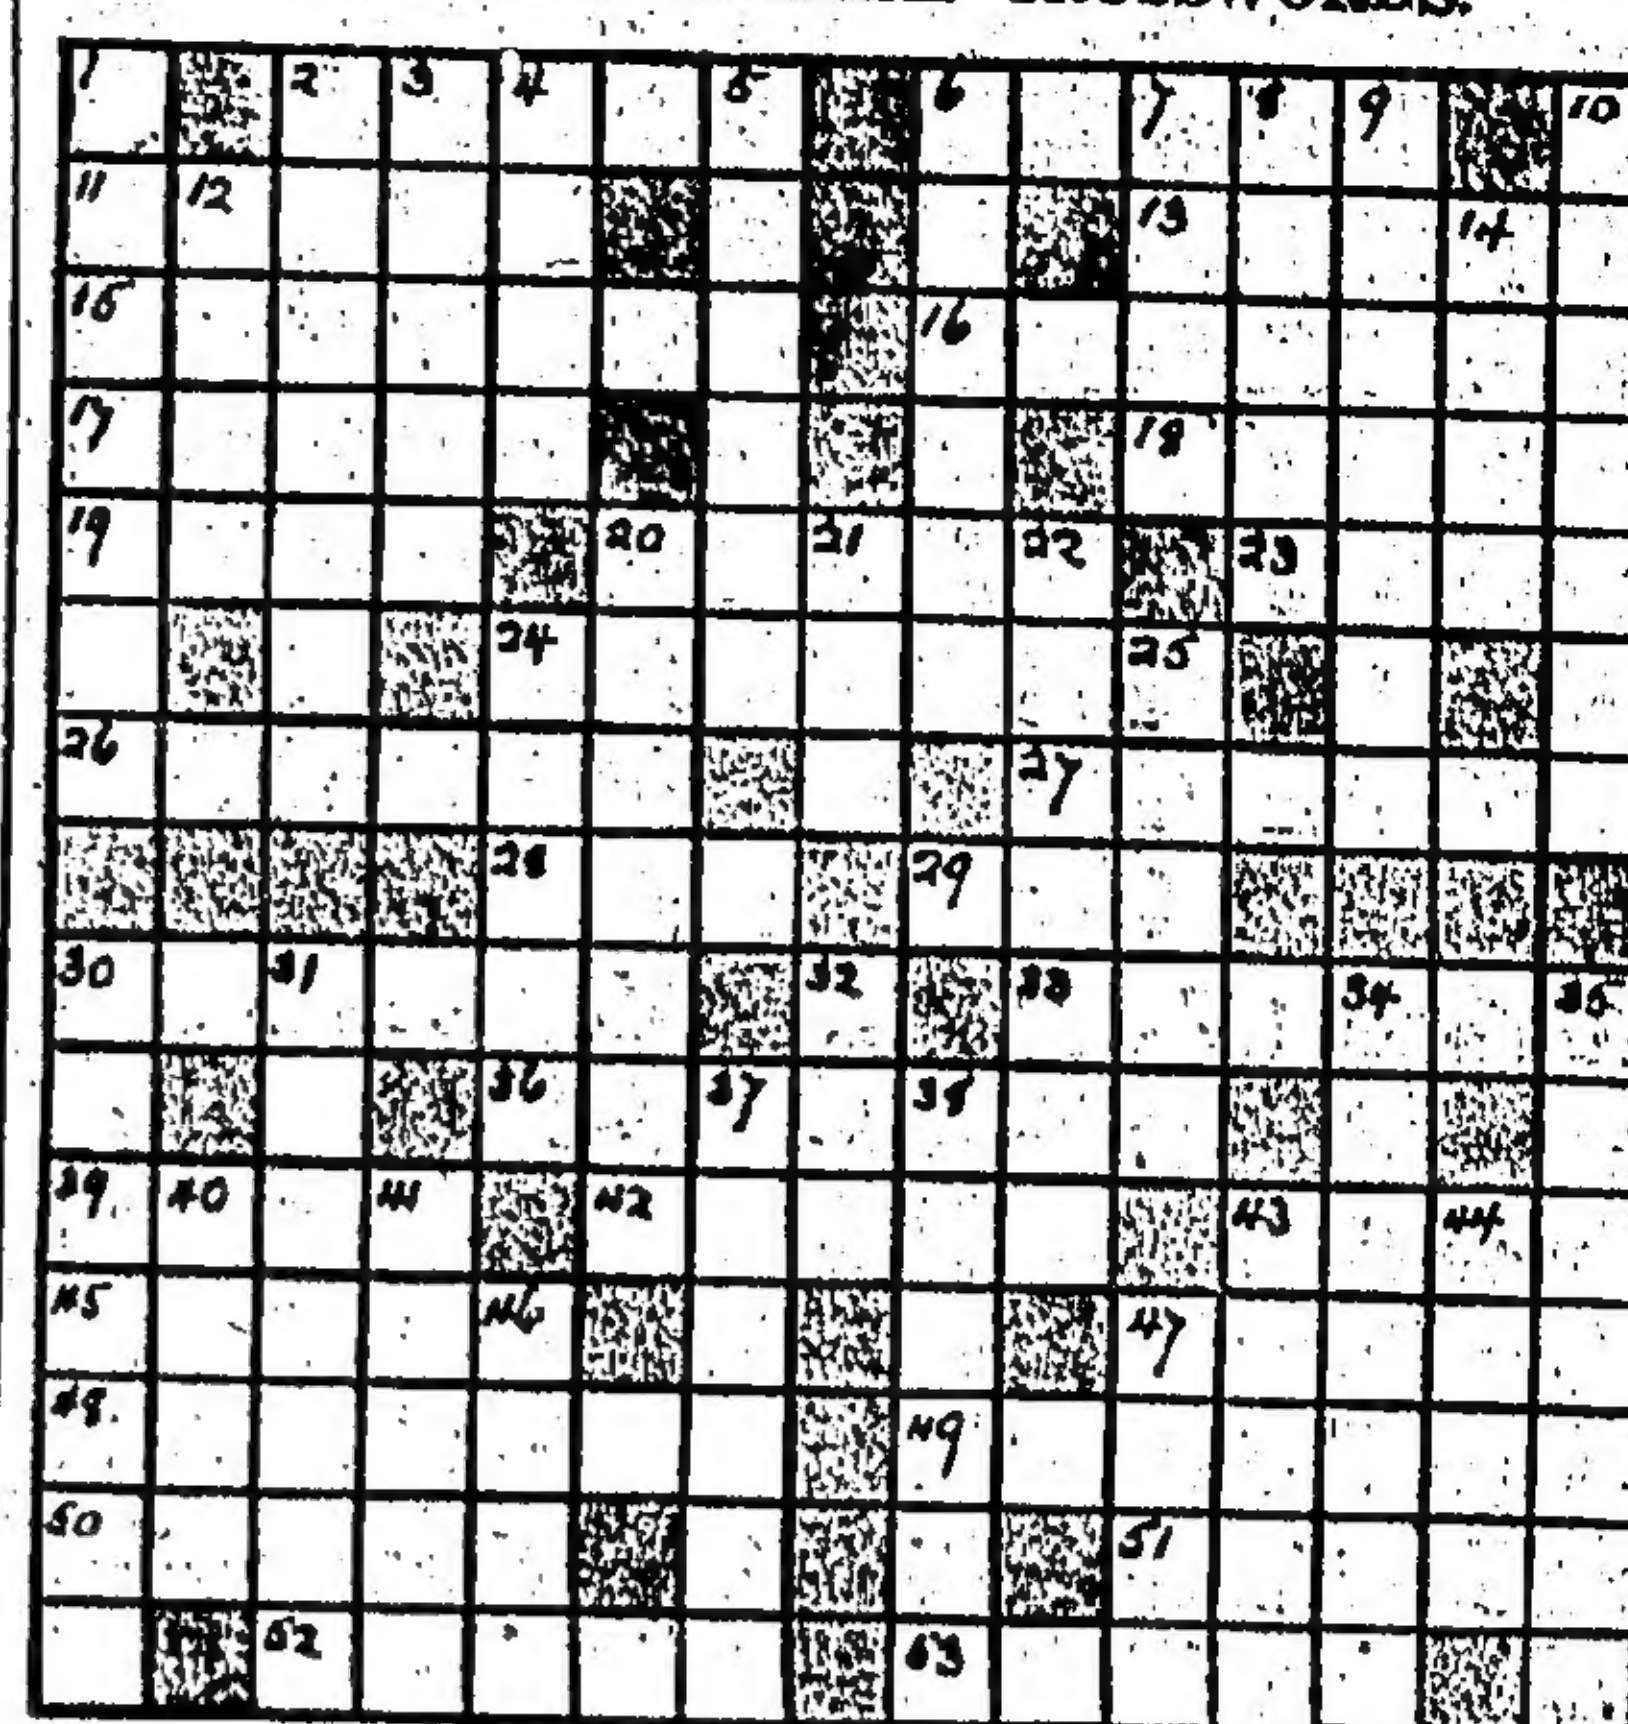

Undoubtedly the surplus of women over men left by the war created grave handicaps for women, so far as matrimony was concerned.

Women very often met the situation by assuming an independence which they did not really feel, and by throwing themselves into careers, and bravely making the best of the life that seemed to be the only one that was open to them.

True, a few delicate attempts were made by certain far-seeing and motherly-hearted women to adjust the balance between the sexes, by encouraging emigration among women to parts of the Empire where wives were in demand, but nothing was done on a large enough scale to diminish perceptibly the numbers of the surplus women in this country.

Mr. St. John Ervine reminds us that there are not only opportunities for women to marry in America, but also splendid opportunities for work. Would it not be for the ultimate good of the women who remained as well as any who decided to try their fortunes in a new land, if his hint were to be widely acted upon?

LASHES FOR MAN WHO ATTACKED GIRL.

'CAT THE ONLY REMEDY,' SAYS JUDGE.

"You attacked a defenceless girl for the purpose of robbery. The only way to stop that is to administer the cat."

Sir Henry Dickens, K.C., the Common Serjeant, made this remark at the Old Bailey when sentencing Edmund Thomas Chamberlain, 23, to 12 months' hard labour and 15 lashes with the cat.

Chamberlain and Alice Gordon Warren, 19, were found guilty of breaking and entering a shop and stealing a cash-box and other articles; and with robbing a girl of 15 with violence and stealing her handbag and its contents.

The girl, a dressmaker's apprentice, said she was walking home at night through Tottenham Cemetery when Chamberlain and Warren attacked her.

She fell and screamed, and Chamberlain struck her in the face. She struggled and bit him.

Chamberlain tried to drag her to a brook, but she managed to get away and ran home.

Dr. Scott said when he saw the girl she was in a nervous state. She had cuts and abrasions on her face and a large bruise on her right elbow.

Sir Henry Dickens ordered Warren to be sent to a Borstal establishment for three years.

PREMIER EXPECTS MAJORITY.RESTING AT THE CHEQUERS AFTER LONG TOUR.*"EARNEST" ELECTION.

London, May 26. The Prime Minister, Mr. Baldwin, is resting at The Chequers to-day after a fortnight's strenuous tour of the constituencies.

He granted an interview to a Press representative to-day when he said that the strongest impression on his mind was the earnestness of the nation over the election.

There was nothing of a euphoric atmosphere about it; on the contrary, the people, the electors, were in a reflective mood.

"As for the result, I am confident that we (the Conservative Party) shall win with such a majority as will enable us to carry on our work for the recovery of Britain's prosperity and the betterment of social conditions, against joint Liberal and Labour opposition."—Reuter.

Lloyd George's Figures.

London, May 26. In the Daily Mail Mr. Lloyd George forecasts that the aggregate votes at the general election will total:

Conservatives 6,500,000
Liberals 7,000,000
Labour 7,500,000

"Labour's Clear Majority."

London, May 26.

"I have carried the fiery cross north, south, east and west and lay it down here having done my duty in the country," declared Mr. Ramsay MacDonald at Durham on the conclusion of his 2,000 mile tour.

He said there would be no Liberal revival and that the Labourites would have a clear majority.—Reuter.

"Dullest on Record."

London, May 26.

Barring last moment stunts, of which there is no evidence at present, the election campaign to the end promises to justify the description, "the dullest on record."

The party leaders, Mr. Baldwin, Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. Ramsay MacDonald have now virtually completed their country-wide pilgrimages and are resting during the week-end preparatory to winding up the campaign in their own constituencies.

It is noteworthy that the most seasoned newspaper prophets are chary of uttering predictions. The Sunday newspapers have almost unanimously on "the stalemate danger" and the resultant long period of instability.—Reuter.

Dates of the Results.

London, May 26.

Two hundred and two election results are to be declared on the night of May 30, and include the contents of eighteen Ministers, of whom nine are Cabinet Ministers. They comprise Sir Austen Chamberlain and Mr. Neville Chamberlain, Sir A. Steel Maitland, Mr. Amery, Sir Samuel Hoare, Sir L. Worthington Evans, Lord Eustace Percy, Sir P. Cunliffe Listner, and Sir Wm. Joynton Hicks; also Mr. Arthur Henderson, Mr. J. R. Clynes and Sir Herbert Samuel.

The fate of Mr. Baldwin, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, Mr. Lloyd George, Mr. Winston Churchill, Mr. Philip Snowden and Sir John Simon will be known on the afternoon of May 31.

The first result is expected at Bury at ten in the evening of May 30, and will continue until four in the morning of May 31.

The remaining four hundred results will begin on the afternoon of May 31.

The University declarations will be made from June 3 to June 4, but the Scottish University result is not expected until June 10.—Reuter.

DRAMATIST IN MOTOR ACCIDENT.MR. SOMERSET MAUGHAM IN MISHAP.

Nice, Apr. 30.

Mr. Somerset Maugham, the well-known playwright, who is at present living at the Villa Millona, Cap Ferrat, was motoring through Ele-sur-Mer when his car knocked down a woman who had stepped out behind a stationary omnibus.

Mr. Maugham immediately stopped, picked the woman up, and pushed her to the British Hospital, but she died on the way.

Mr. Maugham placed himself at the disposal of the police, but was not detained after particulars of the accident had been taken, it being obvious that he was not in any way to blame.—Central News.

SHANGHAI INDIANS SENTENCED.SEDITION PREACHED AT CHURCH SERVICE.*LONG TRIAL ENDED.

Shanghai, May 26.

The British Court here has sentenced five British Indians charged with seditious activities to prison terms ranging from one to two months, following which they will be deported to India for further prison terms probably amounting to life sentences.

Evidence brought out at the hearing alleged that the Indians held church services during which anti-British speeches were delivered and Indian nationalist newspapers read containing attacks upon British rule in India.

Some alleged utterances were to the effect that "India Afghanistan and Persia must stand together against England. We must unite with Russia and China against England. The Indians helped England in the World War, but England only rewarded us by shooting at Jallianwallah."—Reuter.

"The time has come when Indian people must show their strength by the sword."

The Indians were defended by a British lawyer who made a strong plea, saying that the alleged seditious utterances appear in all Indian Nationalist newspapers published in India, and since they are permitted to be published there it was unfair to charge Indian residents of China with sedition because the newspapers are read here.

The prosecutor, summing up the evidence, alleged that the accused evinced strong communistic leanings, and this is no time to quibble over technicalities.

The judge after passing sentence said he was certain that the Indians had used the church service to screen seditious speeches.—Chicago Tribune correspondent.

Uneasiness Allayed.

Canton, May 26.

The uneasiness felt in Canton yesterday owing to the arrival of so many troops from the North has been greatly allayed, as they were not landed here and have already left.

The a.s. Kwang Tai fled up at the China Merchant buoy just off Shameen at 1 p.m. absolutely crammed with troops. However, she did not land any and at 6 p.m. she suddenly proceeded down the Back Reach and left the harbour, being followed a few minutes later by the Chang Tai also full of troops. It is believed that neither of these two vessels landed a single man.

Troops Transferred.

Large junks and lighters were, however, observed alongside the other two vessels, the China Merchant's Yu Shun and the Yuan Shan, and troops were seen going aboard these junks. About 2 a.m. to-day both these vessels also left the port, but it was too dark to see whether they still had troops on board or not.

It is reported that there were still two other transports outside which did not enter the port, and that they have all gone down towards the Fu Man forts at Boca Tigris where they will transfer the troops to junks which will proceed immediately up the West River to reinforce the Cantonese Army advancing on Wuchow.

How far all this is true, it is impossible to say, as no confirmation or definite information on the subject can be obtained.

In the meantime, the Canton populace is certainly very much relieved that the troops have not been landed here. It is probably due to General Chan Chai-long if they have been sent immediately up the West River, as he was doing all he could to prevent the troops from coming to Canton, where they were certainly not wanted.—Our Own Correspondent.

Another Trouble.

Peking, May 26.

The Canton authorities are now harassed by another trouble. According to messages from there it appears that the Red troops which for some time harried south Kwangsi, have now penetrated Kwangtung and are threatening Shichow.

An appeal for troops has reached Canton from Shichow.

The U.S.S. Guam left Wuchow on Friday morning with six American civilians on board. It is understood that thirty other Americans remain at Wuchow although they have been warned to evacuate.—Reuter.

Harbour Notices.

Both issued under date of Saturday, the following Notices to Mariners are circulated by the Hongkong Harbour Department. For the present it is recommended that ships should not approach Chinese warships in Swatow Bay during dark hours. Ships for Samshui need no longer arrive at 8 a.m. They may arrive at any time.

World's record for continuous piano playing for 72 hours, held by an American, has been broken at Vienna by a pianist, who played for 76 hours.

"Yes, you'd never recognize it."

U. S. MISSIONARIES KIDNAPPED.CAPTURED BY BANDITS AND HELD FOR 19 DAYS.*CHINESE PAY RANSOM.

Shanghai, May 26.

Two American missionaries, the Reverend Harry Schwendener, of Chicago and Edgar Truax, of Boone, Iowa, returned to civilization to-day after 19 days as prisoners of Chinese bandits in Kweichow, Szechuen province, and recounted a set of thrilling experiences to a Press correspondent at Hankow.

The kidnapping occurred on April 24 near the town of Sung-tao, in extreme northeast of Kweichow, where they encountered a gang of eight bandits who took them through a mountain pass leading to Szechuen where they were robbed and abandoned.

Before they had proceeded far they encountered another bandit gang who took them prisoners again and marched them, barefoot over a mountain range to a cave where they were confined without food, with their hands tied behind their backs.

The bandits finally released Truax with instructions to raise a ransom of 20,000 for Schwendener's release.

Truax got in touch with the Chinese authorities who succeeded in obtaining Schwendener's release on May 13, government officials supposedly paying the ransom in order to avoid complications possibly resulting in murder, similar to the experiences of three Catholic priests a short time before.

Both missionaries are suffering from swollen hands and arms as a result of having their hands tied, but otherwise are no worse off for the experience.

They state that the bandits were actually soldiers belonging to the recently defeated Kwangsi troops. Both missionaries have been residents of China for several years.

LABOUR AND NEXT PARLIAMENT.MR. MACDONALD WILLING TO FORM GOVERNMENT.

Speaking at Rhos, near Wrexham, recently Mr. J. H. Thomas said:—

"If the verdict of this country shows, as I believe it will, that the people are not only sick of the existing Government, but do not trust the Liberal party, then there is only one course, and that is:—

"Mr. MacDonald will be asked—let me add, he will not only be asked, but he will accept the responsibility of forming, under any circumstances, a Government. Then it will be for that small insignificant band to do as it did in 1924—to try to hatch another plan with a view to turning Labour out."

After extensive repairs, necessitated by a collision with a steamship, the South Goodwin Lightship has been towed from Ramsgate Harbour to her position.

"TRAITORS" IN FENG CAMP?CONFLICTING REPORTS OF KUOMINCHUN.*"OFFICIAL" STORIES.

Shanghai, May 27.

According to information obtained from official sources in Nanking, Marshal Feng Yu-hsiang is to be forced to retire from command of the Kuominchun by some of his leading subordinates, including Han Fu Chu, Shi Yao San and Wa Sung Kwei, who have issued a joint circular telegram supporting the Nanking Government and saying that the famine stricken people of Kansu, Shensi and Honan cannot afford to have another civil war.

Feng is concentrating his royal forces at Tungkuang, the gateway to Shensi and other districts westward. In the event of his involuntary retirement from China, he will probably entrust the command of the Kuominchun to General Lu Ching Lin, his right hand man.—Nan Chung Kuo News Service.

A naval wireless message which says nothing of any alleged defection states that it is reported that Feng Yu-hsiang has 250,000 men under arms. Of this number 150,000 are facing General Tang Seng-chi while the remainder are facing the Nationalist forces in the south.

Purely on Defensive.

Hankow, May 26.

It is now stated that Marshal Feng will fight purely on the defensive, and in support of this theory, it is learned that intricate defence works are being constructed covering the approach to Tungkuang at the following points: Szechui, Yen-shih, Tienkou, Kwanyintang and Shanchow.

It is stated that the defences consist of elaborate trench systems and concrete emplacements amongst the hills at these points, and that two divisions are already in position there.

It is believed that the Christian General himself is at present at Chengchow directing operations.

The local situation is very quiet. Two regiments of Lu Ti-ping-ites have moved from Wuchang to a point a little north of Hankow, while it is stated that Wuhan troops in Kihnan are slowly advancing to Shinyang, the latter city having been evacuated by the Kuominchun garrison who have retired north of the Hwaiho River.—Reuter.

Charges Against Feng.

Shanghai, May 26.

A message from Hankow, dated yesterday, gives further details of the damage to the Kin-Han railway which reveal that the four main bridges destroyed are at Tungsongho, Changtialwan, Lishingien and Shantien. It is stated that over $400,000 will be required for repairs. Trains are now running as far as Tungsongho.

No news is obtainable here with regard to Feng's movements. The vernacular papers charge the Christian General with acting directly under orders of the Third Internationale and that arms and ammunition are being supplied by the Soviet.

It is also stated that the notorious Communist propagandist Tan Yen-ta is at present conferring with Feng and superintending the despatching of emissaries to Hupeh, Shansi and elsewhere, spying on the military movements of Government troops and fomenting rumours.—Reuter.

Support For Chiang Kai-shek.

Shanghai, May 26.

A message from Nanking states that Han Fu-chu, the leading Kuominchun leader, wired to Chiang Kai-shek on May 23 pledging his allegiance to the Central Government and adding that he is concentrating 100,000 troops at Loyang and awaiting instructions from Chiang Kai-shek regarding the disposal of them.—Reuter.

Chiang's Offer to Feng.

Shanghai, May 26.

A message from Nanking says Chiang Kai-shek wired to Feng Yu-hsiang last night stating that if Feng is willing to retire from politics and go abroad, Chiang will be willing to recommend the Central Government to give him protection.

"To attempt to hold the Northwest in defiance of the Central Government is merely to seek death."—Reuter.

In March, 3,105 recruits were approved for service in the Territorial Army, the total number during the first six months of the recruiting year being 11,761.

APATHY AT GENERAL ELECTION.

"COPY-BOOK" MAXIMS FOR THE COUNTRY.

London, May 1.

Mr. Churchill was the speaker last night for the seventh address in the pre-Dissolution series of broadcast political talks. He was clearly heard.

In an easy, conversational style, the Chancellor of the Exchequer put forward the Conservative case as though talking directly to each listener from an armchair by the fireside. Rarely did he produce a sentence in the style of platform oratory, but rather depended on a quiet and assured manner to convince his hearers.

In his closing words Mr. Churchill warned the electorate against apathy or over-credulity, lest they should wake one morning to find that the stability and ever-increasing prosperity of the British Empire should have departed.

Mr. Lloyd George's unemployment scheme, remarked Mr. Churchill, would only delay men getting back to regular industry. Work on the roads would, in many cases, spoil their hands for their own trades. It would interrupt the whole natural recovery of industry, and when the money for the relief work had been spent, they would be thrown back upon the labour market, and the country would be saddled for several generations with the interest upon the money borrowed and spent.

Continuing, the Chancellor of the Exchequer declared:

Although a third of our capital was spent in the War, we are wealthier. Although the flower of our manhood was killed we are more numerous. There is no reason whatever for being downhearted. On the contrary, our prospects are bright—if we do not spoil them.

Personally, he proceeded, I find it very difficult to believe that there is any short cut to prosperity.

What We Ought to do.

Peace abroad; steady, stable government at home; clean, honest, impartial administration; good will in industry and co-operation between masters and men; public and private thrift; pay your debts and pay your way, and save as much as you can; lighten the burdens of galling rates, and so forth upon productive industry and agriculture; modernise your factories and businesses; modernise particularly your railways, which are much behind the times; multiply and strengthen your hold upon your markets abroad, especially those priceless new markets which are offered in our vast tropical Empire, but which take time and forethought to develop; cheapen the cost of living to the mass of the people as much as possible. That will not only promote contentment, but it will give your industries in the long run a greater competitive power in the world market.

Avoid chops and changes of policy; avoid thimble-rigging and three-card trick men; avoid all needless borrowings; and above all, avoid as you would the small-pox class warfare and violent political strife. These are almost copy-book maxims, but do not let us forget the copy-book maxims. All wisdom is not new wisdom. There is really no doubt what we ought to do and what we ought to go on doing, and what we ought to avoid and what we ought to keep on avoiding. We know it only too well.

The Dominant Issue.

The issue at the Election, the Chancellor proceeded, was much graver than unemployment. It was the well-being of the whole British people and the position of Britain and her Empire in this gigantic modern world. Powerful, mighty countries were towering up as rivals, competitors with us in every form of human activity, in every way in which we got our daily bread.

These are critical years for the British Empire, Mr. Churchill continued. Shall we draw more closely together, or shall we drift and fall to pieces? Will the noble comradeship of the Great War unite us as we have never been united before, or will that prodigious event turn out to be only what Mr. Bernard Shaw has called "the last spring of the old Lion"? If we can come through this critical period, if we can draw ever closer together, then indeed we shall be the equal of any organisation yet founded among men; and the British Empire and the United States can walk forward side by side leading mankind in majesty and peace.

I spoke of rivals, of peaceful rivals of Britain, the Chancellor proceeded; but what of her enemies? These enemies do not dwell only in foreign lands, they are to be found here and there in every part of the British Empire, in every Dominion and Dependency of the Crown, and we have them here at our own heart at home. Show me any force or faction or sect or movement hostile to Britain in any part of the world—India, Ireland, Egypt, Moscow—look where you will, which is not eagerly awaiting the hour when the governing centre of the British Empire will either be reduced to a vacant incoherence, or actually put in the power of men who not three years ago were the leaders of the General Strike. Every enemy of this country is waiting his chance to spring. And all this may happen in a day.

You may go to bed, the citizens of a strong, stable, progressive country, where culture expands and freedom thrives; you may wake to find that, all unthinking, unwitting, through credulity, carelessness, through apathy, you have cast away with both hands domestic tranquillity, commercial revival, and imperial consolidation, and launched out upon a formidable voyage, the course of which, and the end of which, no man or woman can foresee.

MAPPING UNKNOWN COUNTRY.

IMPORTANCE OF AIR PHOTOGRAPHY.

Photography from aeroplanes is constantly gaining in importance. Its application may be divided into two principal fields: diagonal photographs to show a certain object, such as a building, factory, town and so on, and vertical photographs which provide a map-like representation of the ground photographed.

The diagonal photographs are taken with simple hand aerial cameras, the desired object being photographed at an angle of from 30 to 40 degrees from a plane flying at a height of only a few hundred metres. The pictures thus taken have the advantage of providing a better survey than those taken from the ground level.

They show the object photographed much more plasticly and permit of the relative position of its several parts being more clearly recognised so that they are more graphic than ground level pictures. For this reason they are becoming increasingly popular for educational purposes and as illustrations and advertisements.

The "aerial plans" prepared from vertical photographs are even more important. In taking them panoramic cameras and aerial pictures are employed. Both are automatic recording apparatuses, partly for plates and partly for films, firmly attached to the aeroplane. The aeroplane flies over the stretch of country to be photographed and the apparatuses record a series of continuous vertical pictures of the country which overlap from 25 to 60 per cent. Owing to this fact, when two consecutive pictures are examined through a spectroscopic effect

To Exact Scale.

For the production of map plans these photographs are placed in special projection apparatuses. These apparatuses, of which the most highly developed are the "Aerograph" and the "Aerograph" constructed by Professor Huguershoff, Munich, produce photographs of the exact map of the ground on the exact scale required. Thus photography from aeroplanes now actually does the same work as was formerly done by land measurement on the ground. Indeed it is superior to the earlier method of measurement in various respects.

The work is done more quickly; it is not nearly so difficult to photograph a stretch of country from an aeroplane and work up the photographs with the apparatuses mentioned above as to measure the same spot and then draw the plan. Thus also every plan prepared on ground level is already out of date when it appears. But it is otherwise with the new process, which shows the site as it actually was a few days previously.

For this reason it is found of use in making plans of larger industrial centres where new works are constantly put up in consequence of the great building activity. Proof of this was given at the International Aeronautical Exhibition in Berlin by a plan of the Ruhr Coal District which gave a much better representation of ing in August, when with others, I was deported to Shanghai. Since that time I have tried in vain to establish my citizenship. I appeal for this because I feel that I am truly entitled to American citizenship.

Such is the girl's statement. On the other hand, she has been informed by the American authorities that a careful search of the files fails to disclose any previous information relating to herself, and in the absence of proof that she is an American citizen, her application for registration is disapproved.

The authorities interested themselves in her case and communicated with the Bureau of Vital Statistics of New York City and were informed that the files contain no record of the girl.

Stowaway Attempts.

Louisa Gerald has been in Shanghai about four years. During that time she has been persistent in her endeavours to get to America, regardless of the manner of her passage. Once she stowed away on a Japanese vessel. A few hours out of port she appeared on deck. A passenger noted her tears and made inquiries. A collection was taken and her passage paid to Kobe. She got no farther, however, as each time she attempted to stow away in the Japanese port she was found out. Louisa returned to this city to start all over again.

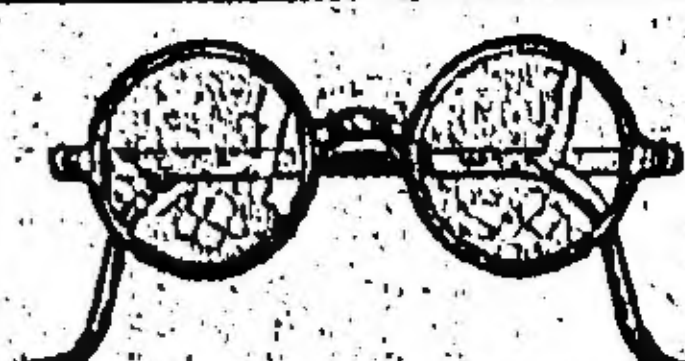

For a time Louisa was employed by an American family in Tientsin. Her references from this family state that she was an honest, efficient servant and very good to children. The girl says she is a fair typist and is anxious to obtain that kind of employment.

She told her story of misfortunes, gravely and in a straightforward manner. She stated that she has two brothers, but is not certain as to their whereabouts. Louisa lives at 12a Kungping Road.

the district than it has ever been possible to give by means of a terrestrially prepared map.

Impassable regions can only be mapped in this way, by photography from the air. At the present time the unexplored regions of Brazil are being definitely mapped in this way. Several countries have already adopted the new process for their official land surveys, among others Hungary, Spain and Switzerland. In Persia at the present time the Julius Berger Company, who are building the Bandar Abbas-Teheran Railway, are carrying out the laying-out of the trace and the whole of the cartographical work on the Bandar Abbas-Alibad section with the help of aeroplane photography, using the apparatus constructed by Professor Huguershoff.

Thus the surveying of countries and districts with the help of the aeroplane has begun its triumphal march across the globe and is in process of ousting the method, formerly in use, of surveying on the ground.

TEA CLIPPER DAYS.

INTERESTING FILM AT THE QUEEN'S.

"The Yankee Clipper," now showing at the Queen's make a very acceptable picture. As a story of seamanship before the advent of the steamship, it is a production which may be classed as out of the ordinary, while reviving the full charm and romance associated with the days of the China tea-clippers.

Briefly, the story tells of the friendly struggle between two crack vessels for the capture of the Foochow tea-trade. In the race that follows between the two craft, is shown how much seamanship and the trim of each ship mattered, and how the extraction of an additional knot out of the speed was all-important. Into the story there is also woven another romance, between man and maid, with its climax bound up with the outcome of the race.

William Boyd has the leading role in this picture, which is being shown for the last time to-day.

Mr. Bernard Shaw on FORMAMINT!

MANY famous persons have voluntarily given us testimonials to Formamint.

But Mr. Bernard Shaw has paid us the still higher compliment of publicly treating Formamint as "a household word."

Writing in the Christian Commonwealth (July 3rd, 1912), he casually refers to Formamint as a thing universally known and used—which indeed it is—for killing bacteria in the mouth, and so preventing the diseases they cause. Mr. Shaw says—and we quote this "Shavian" utterance with all due apologies—

"When a man... puts a Formamint lozenge in his mouth to kill a few thousand bacilli he is trying to wipe out the consequences of old mistakes of creation."

These "mistakes of creation" include the bacilli which give us Consumption, Influenza, Diphtheria, Scarlatina, Measles, etc.

By the regular use of Formamint you are not only protected from such dangerous diseases—you are also helping to "wipe them out" altogether.

And Formamint is an ideal cure and preventive of Sore Throat, Foul Mouth, Offensive Breath, "Spongy Gums," etc.

FORMAMINT IS OBTAINABLE
AT ALL CHEMISTS

DETECTIVE THRILLER!

THE BLACK PIGEON.

By Anne Austin.

CHAPTER XLIII.

"Well, darling," Ruth said, after she and Jack Hayward had deposited their trays upon a table in a far corner of the cafeteria, "this has been a busy morning! Not result—a confession!"

"What!" Relief flared in the young insurance broker's eyes. "Why didn't you tell me as soon as we met?"

Contrition sobered Ruth's vivid little face. "Forgive me, darling! I've raised your hopes, just to dash them. It was just Benny—lying like the darling little idiot that he is, because he thought McMann was going to arrest me! I'll read you his whole 'confession'—I took it down in shorthand, at McMann's request—when I've transcribed it. Of course Benny was half delirious with fever, but I'll never have a nobler compliment paid me."

"You're a siren and a cradle snatcher," Jack told her severely. "It's a good thing I'm going to marry you and withdraw you from circulation. Any other developments this morning?"

Smiling delightedly, the girl told her sweetheart of Cleo Gilman's stimulating visit and its ludicrous effect upon dear old McMann. "I really believe, Jack," she concluded, "that if Cleo hadn't just married one of the most uppity of the Upper Ten, that our detective department's shining light would have tried to date her up. He may do it yet. But I wasn't making any idle boast last night when I said I was going to take charge of the murder investigation this morning." And then she told him of her visit to Mrs. Borden and to Minnie Cassidy, resulting in the discovery of the orchid-tinted letter in the secret drawer of Borden's desk.

"Good work!" Jack applauded dutifully, but Ruth was quick to see that a shadow settled in the eyes she loved. He acknowledged the shadow by adding, hesitatingly: "But I can't help feeling sorry, sweet, that poor Martha Manning has to be dragged into this. I'm sure she didn't kill Borden, and—well, there's something about that woman that gets you—"

"Jake Bailey, another of our morning callers, puts it a little differently," Ruth retorted. "He says Miss Manning 'got Borden, but he doesn't mean exactly what you do... I'm sorry, dear! I understand how you feel, for I've been feeling like a malicious, meddling little beast myself, ever since she told her whole, pitiful, tragic story."

"Don't feel too badly," Jack urged tenderly, his hand clapping over hers tightly. "McMann would have got on her trail within a few hours anyhow, since there must be a number of people who knew of her and Borden's affair... But what did McMann get out of the poor thing, with his damnable third degree methods?"

Ruth neglected her soup and salad to recount every detail of Martha Manning's story, in the order in which McMann had extracted it.

"I'd like to choke that bully!" Jack interrupted fiercely, when Ruth told him, with astonishing vividness, how the detective had secured the woman's fingerprints. "Haven't you learned your lesson yet, red-head?" Ruth chided him gently. "I should think you'd never utter another threat so long as you live."

"I suppose some lip-reading detective has already made a note of my slip of the tongue, and if McMann is ever bumped off, I'll be accused of the crime. But, c'mon, sweetheart! I promise to be good!"

Ruth "cut along" rapidly, describing with wry humour the various tilts between Martha Manning and Jake Bailey, Borden's bodyguard.

"But against his will," she concluded, "Jake did do Miss Manning a good turn. His professional pride would not let him admit that Martha could have been close enough to him on the street so that she could see the pattern of his shirt and tie, without his seeing her. So it all boils down to this: Bailey himself, much as he hates Miss Manning, because he believes she killed his boss, corroborated her story of having been in the Starbridge Building Friday night, from about half-past eight till a few minutes past nine."

"A few minutes past nine?" Jack repeated thoughtfully. "And she says she walked down the stairs and out of the lobby at that time?"

Sudden comprehension illumined Ruth's lovely face. "I see what you mean! Why didn't I think of that before? That's just when the little army of cleaning women and porters is pouring out of the building. I've seen them a dozen times, at least. They're through work at nine. I'll speak to Mr. McMann as soon as I get back to the office—"

Jack interrupted, grinning: "I thought you were conducting his investigation, young lady! Why not make inquiries yourself? Mrs. Pellow, the grand old dowager in charge of the cleaning women, must be in the building now. She comes on about two o'clock, I think, and acts as a sort of housekeeper for the building, even before the cleaning women come on. Let's have a go at her, darling. Now—eat every leaf of that salad, or Papa spunk!"

Ruth obeyed, but now and then a puzzled frown knit her brows, and her brooding blue eyes darkened.

"What's the heavy thinking about, honey?" Jack inquired at last.

Ruth shook her head, as if to clear it of mist. "I—don't know. That's the funny thing about it. In fact, I'm not so much thinking as—listening."

"Listening? 'Spirit messages?'" Jack laughed.

"You needn't laugh!" Ruth protested. "Dad did come to me in my dream last night and make me remember the orchid-tinted letter. And I believe that letter is more important than it seems now, or Daddy wouldn't have—"

"It was your subconscious, getting in a chance to remind you of something you'd forgotten," Jack explained easily. "But I'm glad, darling, that you had your little visit with your father, even if it was only a dream. He must have been a wonder—Colly Lester."

"He was," Ruth agreed. "But shut up now, Jack, and let my subconscious work in peace. That's what I'm trying to listen to."

The girl frowned. Those poor, thin, tortured hands of Martha Manning... What mute message had they been trying without Martha Manning's knowledge or consent, to get across to her? And surely there had been something else—something she'd made a mental note of as Martha Manning talked, something apparently trivial.

"Come along, darling, if you want to see Mrs. Pellow!" Jack interrupted, just as Ruth felt that she was on the verge of receiving a clear, strong message from her subconscious mind.

"Now it's gone!" she reproached her future husband ambiguously, but she rose obediently. "Here's my check. You may as well get used to paying for it, young man!"

It was good to breathe in deep draughts of the sharp, cold air, to feel the winter sunshine on their faces. With mutual unspoken consent, the two who had lived for two days under a dreadful shadow—a shadow which might materialize into a prison cell for Jack Hayward—stood for two or three minutes on the edge of the sidewalk, content not to talk, merely to breathe deeply.

Micky Moran, the levator operator of the car Ruth habitually used, told them where to find Mrs. Pellow: "She's in her office on the second floor—235. Way at the back of the building. I carried her up at two o'clock myself, and seen her go down toward her office."

The head cleaning woman, or possibly more accurately, the "housekeeper" of the Starbridge Building, was in her little cubbyhole of an office, just as Micky had assured the couple she would be. They found her at her small, cheap desk, talking over the telephone. She nodded, and went on with her conversation.

"Yes, Mr. Feldblum! I understand... Yes, I'll ask Minnie if she saw the paper that's missing, but all our cleaning women have strict orders not to move papers that are left out on desks... All right, Mr. Feldblum! Of course I'm very sorry, but I'm sure—Oh! she cried angrily, as she replaced the receiver on the hook. "Hung up on me, as if I as dirt under her feet! It's Miss Lester, isn't it? And Mr. Hayward? Any news yet about poor Mr. Borden, though, a harder man to get along with—But I shouldn't say a word, seeing as how he's dead—" viling the life out of me, so I don't get a minute to do my work!"

Ruth's smile broadened, for she knew that Mrs. Pellow had never enjoyed herself so much in her life. "It is awfully annoying, I know, Mrs. Pellow, but I won't keep you a minute. You 'check out' the cleaning women as they leave every evening, don't you—about nine o'clock?"

"I certainly do!" Mrs. Pellow agreed emphatically. "And just let one of those old girls try to slip past me with anything they haven't got a right to! Why, just before Christmas—day before Christmas Eve, it was—I caught one old lady trying to sneak out with a satchel full of Christmas presents she'd swiped from—"

"Oh, how awful!" Ruth interrupted, with apparently deep sympathy for Mrs. Pellow's troubles. "You stand in the lobby and check them out, don't you?"

"Yes, miss, I do! Every single night in the week, from nine o'clock till they're all gone, and Saturdays from four till the building's clear."

"You were on duty Friday night, weren't you, Mrs. Pellow?"

"I certainly was! But none of my cleaning women stole any gun out of your office, Miss Lester! I'll take my oath on that!" Mrs. Pellow bridled.

"Oh, I didn't think that for a minute!" Ruth disclaimed. "But, please, Mrs. Pellow, if you were in the lobby from nine o'clock till—"

"Nine twenty-five!" Mrs. Pellow interrupted. "And the time clock will prove my words!"

"Then, please, Mrs. Pellow, did you see a woman—not one of your cleaning women, but a visitor in the building, come out of the building Friday evening between nine and 9:25?" Ruth finished her question breathlessly, while her heart beat fast.

Mrs. Pellow's answer came promptly. "No, no, miss, I'd take my Bible oath no woman visitor or any other visitor or tenant came out of the stairway door between nine and 9:25 Friday night."

But Ruth persisted describing Martha Manning accurately. Again she received the same positive denial. "There wasn't any such woman in our lobby Friday night at the time you say."

"What about the stairs beside the service elevator?" Jack thought to ask, and for a moment Ruth felt dashed.

But at Mrs. Pellow's answer hope flowed back, full and strong: "No way for a woman to get in or out of them stairs. The door's kept locked after six, when the elevator man goes off duty. No freight accepted after six."

When Ruth and Jack escaped from Mrs. Pellow's own eager questions as to the progress of the investigation, Ruth said thoughtfully: "I think that proves pretty conclusively that Martha Manning was lying about Friday night, that she must have been here Saturday afternoon instead—or how could her fingerprints have been on the glass panel of the door?"

But if she was here Saturday, how could she have managed both her entrances and exit without being seen by anyone? She's not a ghost, even if she is almost as thin as one—oh! and she broke off her spoken reflections with a sharp gasp.

"Old subconscious working at last!" Jack teased, just as the elevator door opened for them. (To Be Continued.)

FIGHT AT STREET FOUNTAIN.

PERSISTENCE IN CLAIM TO PRIOR RIGHTS.

TEN MEN BOUND OVER.

Disputes at street fountains have become a daily occurrence although in the majority of cases Police intervention has prevented any serious results. A party of ricksha coolies living in Pileken Street and several shop folds residing in the same locality provided a more serious disturbance over the week-end, but on the arrival of the Police the truculent crowd was dispersed with the arrest of ten of their number.

On appearance before Mr. T. S. Whyte Smith at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning, the men faced charges of behaving in a disorderly manner. They all pleaded not guilty.

Inspector Marks said that two men were arrested at the street fountain on Friday but were released with a warning as the Police did not have sufficient evidence against them to warrant a charge.

In Pileken Street several houses were occupied by ricksha coolies who by their residence in the street in which the fountain is situated were under the impression that they had prior right to the use of the fountain. They were in the habit of pushing their way in to draw their water.

Slight Abrasions.

In the present case there was no no serious injury caused to any of the men, although some of them had had slight abrasions. The prosecution asked that the men be bound over.

His Worship said it was apparently hopeless to take evidence to discover which of the men were to blame for the disturbance. There was, however, the point that some of the defendants might not have been in the fight.

Inspector Marks replied that they were all arrested by the Police and there was no doubt that they were all involved in the affair.

The Inspector exhibited a large tin full of stones and several pieces of wood from broken rickshas. These implements were alleged to have been used in the affray.

On hearing evidence, his Worship said that he thought that it was a case for binding over, as Inspector Marks had suggested.

Addressing defendants, his Worship told them that they had to understand the seriousness of creating a disturbance at street fountains. He pointed out that some of the men had received injuries in the fight. He was not, however, going into the question as to which of the men were the aggressors as he did not think he would get anywhere.

Warning Issued.

Inspector Marks asked that his Worship issue a warning to the men that fighting at street fountains had to stop.

His Worship told the defendants they had behaved disgracefully by fighting as they had done and injuring each other. There was no reason why there should be any fights at the fountains at all. All such fights invariably started as the results of someone, who did not want to take his turn, trying to get in front of somebody else.

All defendants were ordered to sign bonds of $50 to be of good behaviour for a period of six months.

U.S. AMBASSADOR TO JAPAN.

OBJECTIONS TO MR. J. V. A.
MacMURRAY.

Shanghai, May 23.
The North China Daily News prints a special Tokyo dispatch stating that it learns that President Hoover was "seriously thinking of appointing John Van A. MacMurray, American Minister to Peking, as Ambassador to Tokyo; however, Hoover learns as a result of Stimson's inquiries in Tokyo that MacMurray is persona non grata in Tokyo."

The dispatch stated that Tokyo's attitude is a result of a feeling by Japanese consular officials in China that MacMurray has often acted "single handed," regarding diplomatic affairs in China wherein all Powers were concerned, when "he should have consulted other foreign representatives for joint action."

The dispatch adds that "as a result of these actions the Japanese consular officials were considerably piqued."

The dispatch stated that the Japanese feel that MacMurray's conclusions on the Sino-American tariff treaty are an illustration of MacMurray's single-handed action where joint action was desirable.—Associated Press.

NOTED FRENCHMAN PASSES AWAY.

A BRILLIANT DIPLOMAT AND ECONOMIST.

M. JACQUES SEYDOUX.

Paris, May 26.

The death has occurred of M. Jacques Seydoux, the former Assistant Director of Political Affairs at the Quai d'Orsay, and at one time one of the most brilliant members of the French Diplomatic Service.—Reuter.

Charles Louis Auguste Jacques Seydoux, who in addition to his diplomatic activities was an economic expert, was born in December, 1870, and took his degree in law. He also studied at the School of Political Science.

Entering the French Diplomatic Service, he served at The Hague and in London, and was later secretary at Athens and Berlin. He then became Assistant Director of Political and Commercial Affairs at the Quai d'Orsay.

From his early days he had specialised in economics and had gained such a reputation that his proposals, though often bold and unorthodox, were always listened to with respect by successive Foreign Ministers. During the war he was occupied with questions relating to the blockade and gradually came to deal not merely with purely commercial matters, but with all that concerned the economic sections of the peace treaties and notably with reparations.

That vexed question had no secrets for him for he was one of the French delegates at the conferences of Spa in 1920, London in May, 1921, Cannes in January, 1922, Genoa in April, 1922, and London in July 1924. He was a strong supporter of the Dawes Plan and watched its successful working with satisfaction. He was almost equally well versed in the problems of the economic reconstruction of Europe.

M. Seydoux was much more than a mere administrative official. He often took the initiative. His clear vision and wide knowledge won him high esteem in British official circles in which it was regretted that his wise counsels were often disregarded by French politicians. After the appointment of M. Laroche, the Director of Political and Commercial Affairs as Ambassador at Warsaw M. Seydoux was offered his post, but he had for some time been afflicted by a painful malady which compelled him not only to refuse promotion, but to retire at the end of 1926.

AN IRRESPONSIBLE SEAMAN.

LITHUANIAN BEFORE THE KOWLOON COURT.

STOWAWAY CHARGED.

Jerums Edwards, a native of Lithuania, appeared before Mr. T. S. Whyte Smith, at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning, on a charge of stowing away from Manila to Hongkong on board the President Jefferson.

The defendant pleaded guilty and stated that he had intended to go to Australia.

Mr. Moon, the second officer of the Jefferson, informed his Worship that the defendant was found under a large quantity of mattresses, which were being moved at the time. He was first found in Hongkong but was refused landing in Manila and was brought back to Hongkong.

Detective Sergeant Kellett told the Court that the defendant was arrested as a vagrant on March 9th and committed to the House of Detention until the 15th.

His Worship pointed out that the charge was, therefore, not quite correct. He remarked that the defendant had stowed away from Hongkong rather than from Manila.

The charge was amended. Detective Sergeant Kellett said the defendant had been in the House of Detention but was later handed over to Mr. H.E. Laneport. He subsequently disappeared. He had arrived from Shanghai and was arrested here as a vagrant.

In reply to his Worship, the defendant said he had been a sailor. He wanted to go to Australia, because there was plenty of work down there.

His Worship was informed that Mr. Laneport had secured a position for the defendant on a ship, but he missed the vessel and later disappeared.

Remarking that he seemed to be an irresponsible sort of being, his Worship imposed the usual fine of $50, or one month's hard labour in default.

GARAGE CLOCK STOLEN.

FROM SOCONY PREMISES
AT LAICHIKOK.

A wall clock which had been stolen from a garage at the Standard Oil Company's installation at Laichikok was the subject of a charge of theft brought against an unemployed Chinese before Mr. T. S. Whyte Smith, at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning. The article was the property of Mr. T. Blans.

The defendant admitted the charge.

His Worship remarked that there seemed to be a terrible lot of thefts going on at Laichikok. He asked if it was because of the place being easily accessible, or whether there was not a good watch kept.

Sergeant Jessop remarked that he thought it was probably the latter reason.

Mr. Blans said the reclamation work which was going on gave men easy access to the premises. It was difficult to know who were workmen and who were not.

The defendant, who was seen to take the clock from the wall of the garage, informed the Court that he had previously worked at the installation.

Sentence of three weeks' hard labour was imposed.
